SIXTY MERRY MILLERS

On Their Way From England to the Cincinnati Exposition.

Special to the Star. New York, May 26.—Sixty English millers have arrived here on their way to Cincinnati to attend the Millers' Exposition there, commencing June 1st. Samuel Smith, a thick-set, ruddy man, President of the British and Irish Millers' Association, says he has come over on purpose to see some of the American milling machines. The best wheat which came to England was from Australia, and the next best was from Michigan.

He had seen a number of milling machines which had been brought to England from this country and had been very much pleased with the Yankee ingenuity they displayed. He thought the Millers' Exhibition at Cincinnati would do a great deal of good by bringing millers from all parts of the world together, where they could examine the different processes and exchange views. The party to-morrow under the guidance of a reception committee will go up East River to Harlem and thence to High Bridge. In the afternoon they will ride through the park and visit public places of interest. On Thursday morning they will take an early train for Cincinnati, via Niagara Falls.
